"The philosophy here is that we would like to encourage you to use as many cycles as possible and to do research projects that can run for weeks or months. But we want to protect owners, whether or not they are heavy users."